Madrid, September 02, 2024.- Greenergy has announced the designation of Francisco García as Director of Global Development and Rubén Gómez as Director of Investor Relations. Both have extensive professional experience, and their incorporation will strengthen the company's corporate structure at a time of strong growth. García will report to Pablo Otín, CEO of Greenergy, while Gómez will report to Daniel Lozano, Director of Strategy and Capital Markets.

Forestry Engineer by the Universidad Politécnica of Madrid, García has spent more than 17 years working in the renewable energy sector. He has experience in more than 10 markets for which he has developed more than 2 GW of photovoltaic and battery projects. After spending five years abroad, he has held relevant positions in multinationals such as Iberdrola, Opdenenergy and Gransolar Group.

Gómez joins Greenergy after almost 17 years at Indra and with an extensive track record in the Investor Relations area. A Telecommunications Engineer with a degree in Business Administration and Management from the Universidad Europea de Madrid (UEM), he has extensive experience in direct relations with investors and analysts.

These new recruitments are part of the company's strong growth in recent years, which has enabled it to establish itself as one of the leaders in the European renewable energy sector. With a presence in three regions: Europe, the United States and Latin America, it has large-scale projects under development such as Oasis de Atacama, the largest battery project in the world, most of which is scheduled to be connected by 2025 and whose first two phases have recently reached financial close for 345 million dollars.

'These two new recruits once again demonstrate the company's ability to attract the best talent and will help us to consolidate our position as a relevant company in the renewable energy sector,' said David Ruiz de Andrés, CEO of Greenergy.
